Abner Astrap, the Johnson county midget, is dead near Painteville at the age of 32. He was a well known character in the upper Big Sandy valley, and never weighed more than forty five pounds. At the time of his death he weighed about thirty pounds and manured about as many inches in height. He succumbed to a sudden statek of pneumonia. During his life he refused many liberal proposals from traveling showmen and preferred his country store to making himself an object for the curious. He never married, and was worth possibly $5,000.

HEART TROUBLE.

SPEAKING of the relation of the American farmer to the American milling industry, The Indiana Farmer says:

industry, The Indiana Parmer says:

"Remove the milling industry from our country and our wheat must go abroad and come in competition with the poor and cheap wheats of Europe and India. Not only is this trae, but the offal is lost to our farmers. The foreign miller will not use American wheat until it comes down in pries to the poor wheat of Europe and India. but the American four could be piaced in every market in the world, because of its superiority, if not shut out by prohibitory foreign Tartifiz.

Please note the Italies.

Now, if the Democratic contention is Now, if the Democratic contention is Now, if the Democratic contention is true, that "the consumer pays the duty," what need the American floor maker care what the amount of duty is? Doesn't the foreign "consumer" pay it? If he does, no part of it comes out of the products of the American miller, and he is at liberty to ship his flour wherever he pleases. But from the foregoing it icoks very much as though the Ameri-can miller must pay the expense of getting his flonr to market.

THE opening of the second and final session of the Flfty-second Congress, on December 5th, 1892, gave President Har-RISON his last opportunity for formal review of his Administration and for a full presentation of the condition of the country as that Administration drew country as that Administration drew mean its close. He said:

"A comparison of the existing coudi-tions with those of the most favored period in the history of the country, will, I believe, show that so high a de-gree of presperity and so general affi-tusion of the counforts of life were never enjoyed by our people."

Then were presented the figures upor which his belief was based. A few of them must prove valuable and interesting. Here are the figures:
